ACADEMIC CONTENT

Overall objective	The thesis is a problem-oriented, exemplary, and participant-driven course, where the student develops and documents knowledge, skills, and competencies to work with a defined, self-chosen, academic research question. The course includes a written dissertation and an oral defence. Communication article: In connection with the dissertation, the student(s) must prepare a communication assignment in which the thesis' research questions and findings (or parts thereof) are communicated to a specific target group. The dissemination article must be designed in a genre and for a medium that is well chosen in relation to the target group and relevant to the content in question. It is recommended that the dissemination article has a length of 2-4 standard pages. The dissemination article is placed immediately after the summary and is included in the overall length requirements.
Detailed description of content Course material and Reading list Overall plan and expected work effort Format	Product: If there is a mediated communication product that is the result of the student(s)' independent efforts, the dissertation must contain an account of the theoretical and practical considerations in connection with planning, organization, and assessment of the production/process, and for the experiences that are gained. Emphasis is given that the form of presentation corresponds to the content and purpose of the communication, including the target group's preferences and background, and that it relates to current conventions and formal requirements within the genre. The dissertation must be based on relevant, academic literature of at least 1500 pages.
Evaluation and feedback	Evaluation will be based on the evaluation practice of the study board.

Programme
ASSESSMENT

At the end of the master's thesis, the student is able to:
