ACADEMIC CONTENT

Overall objective

Advanced study course in business administration

The course provides students with knowledge about the central role of services and experiences in the value creation of companies and consumers in the economy and society as a whole. The course provides insight into management aspects relating to value creation through service and experience development in traditional sectors as well as in dedicated service and experience industries. This includes tourism-based businesses as well as various creative industries, such as modern, IT-based entertainment companies. The course provides insight into the latest academic knowledge on management, innovation and value creation in the production and consumption of services and experiences. On the basis of the latest relevant theories on how value creation should be understood and takes place, the course focuses on the specific characteristics of value creation in services and experience products, and on the role of both companies and consumers in value creation, including in co-creative processes. The course also focuses on the importance of other resources in value creation, such as knowledge and network resources.

Detailed description of content

The course will present and discuss the latest academic knowledge about management, innovation and value creation in the production and consumption of services and experiences.

The course will reflect on the concepts of services and experiences as well as experience economy in comparison with cultural and creative industries, what activities and business sectors they include and their ramifications. Based on the latest relevant theories, the course discusses the specific characteristics and conceptualizations of value creation and innovation in services and experiences, and the role of both companies and consumers in value creation and innovation processes, including in co-creative processes. Other resources relevant for value creation and innovation such as knowledge and network resources will also be discussed.

The course will focus on the role of services and experiences in contemporary societies and their importance for companies and among consumers. The course will discuss management as well as user aspects related to value creation through service and experience development in traditional sectors as well as in dedicated service and experience industries. The size and impact of experiences and cultural and creative industries will be discussed.

The focus on services and experiences in contemporary societies will naturally include discussions and reflection about the influence of pandemics, wars and other societal crises on the local and global production and demand of services and experiences.

During the course different service and experience-based business models will be discussed and theories such as service dominant logic, practice theory and about servitization will be introduced and related to different perceptions of value and value creation in service and experiences.

During the course cases from different sectors of the service and experience economy will be presented and used as the basis for class exercises and to exemplify theories and problematics. This includes for example travel and tourism-based business cases as well as cases from the sharing economy.
