ACADEMIC CONTENT

Overall objective	This project-oriented internship provides students with an opportunity to learn through a mix of practical work, reflection on the intersection between theory and practice, and independent preparation of the internship report under the guidance of a supervisor. Students are themselves responsible for finding and securing an internship host, and for the practical implementation of the internship, including ensuring that both their tasks for the host and their obligations to the university are fulfilled.
-------------------	---

The internship must be approved by the study leader before it is commenced. The main activities must be described and they must lie within the field of the programme. The total work commitment is around 540 hours, of which at least 135 hours should be used for specific study activities.

The problem statement is defined by the student but must relate to theoretical or empirical issues from the field of the programme, which the internship at the host organization or its activities provide an opportunity to explore and illuminate.

Detailed description of content

The project-oriented internship may be taken as an alternative to the third semester project or the Live Case Project at RUC. It provides an opportunity to learn through a mix of practical work, reflection on the intersection between theory and practice, and independent preparation of the internship report under the guidance of a supervisor. Students are themselves responsible for finding and securing an internship host, and for the practical implementation of the internship, including ensuring that both their tasks for the host and their obligations to the university are fulfilled. The internship must be approved by the study leader before it is commenced. The main activities must be described, and they must lie within the field of the programme. The total work commitment is 540 hours, of which at least 135 hours should be used for specific study activities. A written project report must be prepared. The problem statement is defined by the student but must relate to theoretical or empirical issues from the field of the programme, which the internship at the host organization or its activities provide an opportunity to explore and illuminate.

Course material and Reading list

Readings to be identified by the student relevant to the focus of the project-oriented internship.

Expected study effort

Overall plan and expected work effort

A total of 540 hours, of which at least 135 hours should be devoted to study activities and project writing. Of these, around 10 hours are for supervisions/workshops and mid-term evaluation. The exam, including preparation, takes a further 7 hours.

Teaching and learning activities:

• Internship application and contract • Internship employment • Independent research • Supervisory and workshop meetings • Mid-term evaluation

Format	Staff-involving activities take place on campus. Internship work takes place at the relevant company or organization.
Evaluation and feedback	The project-oriented internship is evaluated via a written questionnaire after the end of the overall activity, and is evaluated more generally through meetings of the NUPS Education Committee and contributions of student representatives.
Programme	Dates to be added
